

Kylie Robb

Professional profile

MHSM, PCSB, PCIPC, CICP-A, FACIPC

Kylie Robb is the founder and Managing Director of Niche Dental, an independent infection prevention and control consultancy working with dental practices, corporate groups, associations and public health services across Australia.

Kylie's work centres on clinical governance, quality and safety support and compliance product development for office-based settings. Kylie teaches at the University of Sydney School of Dentistry, contributes to postgraduate infection control programs at other Australian universities and has advised the Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in Health Care. Kylie presents regularly to professional associations, corporate groups and health funds.

Kylie served as a Director of ACIPC from 2019 to 2023 and chaired the Membership Communication and Engagement Committee. Kylie is a Fellow of the College and a Credentialed Infection Control Professional (Advanced).

Qualifications include a Master of Health Services Management (Clinical Leadership) from UTS, a Postgraduate Certificate in Infection Prevention and Control from Griffith University and a Postgraduate Certificate in Sustainable Business from the University of Cambridge Institute for Sustainability Leadership.

Kylie Robb

Election statement

I am seeking election to bring the office-based voice to the ACIPC Board and to advocate for membership and credentialing pathways that recognise skills built in office-based and community settings. I would also help the College's sustainability priority reach small clinical settings.

I have spent 23 years working with office-based settings, professional associations, dental corporates, private and public oral health settings. I am connected and strategic, with postgraduate qualifications in sustainability, health service management and infection prevention and control.

I served as a Director throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, from 2019 to 2023, and chaired the Membership Communication and Engagement Committee. I enjoy the work of a Board: contributing ideas, identifying priorities and working with other directors on decisions that matter. I bring a clear understanding of the obligations that come with the role, the financial literacy that comes from running my own business, and a commitment to the fairness, honesty and transparency the College expects of its Directors.

The College's mission is to advance infection prevention and control across Australasia, and that work happens wherever care is provided. Serving my profession is a privilege that gives me real purpose. I ask for your support to continue it.